

Authentic Maasai immersion in Tanzania to get to know the culture from the inside.

📍 Tanzania

Get to know the Masai culture by doing a real immersion with them in Tanzania. Do it through sustainable and responsible tourism. This is one of Trip To Help's most immersive experiences: experiential tourism and immersion with the Tanzanian Maasai community.

- We will enter into the authentic life of the Maasai, making a real and respectful immersion.
- We will live your day to day, in full connection with nature. We will visit their houses, called bomas, build our own shoes by recycling old tires, learn how to make fire in a natural way, cook our own food and sleep bivouacking under a unique blanket of stars.
- In addition, we will have time to meet and visit the projects of the NGO that inspired Trip to Help. During our stay at the Masai Lodge, we will meet Cornelia, the daughter of the founder of the NGO Africa Amini Alama, doctor of the NGO's health center, and coordinator of the whole project. We will be able to talk to her and she will explain the day-to-day life of this organization.

You will carry this Maasai immersion with you forever. In addition to getting to know the Maasai culture first hand and the ongoing projects of this NGO, you will contribute from the first day to the local community's ability to have a dignified life, with education and health care projects. Experiential, responsible and supportive tourism with the Maasai community in Tanzania. And remember: if you have any questions about the Maasai dive in Tanzania, we are here to answer them.
